The Poets and Their Work

The poets featured in this collection are all former Texas Poets Laureate, appointed by the governor of Texas to honor their outstanding contributions to the field of poetry. Each poet brings their unique style and vision to the page, creating a tapestry of poetic experiences that span a wide range of themes and emotions.

- William Wittliff: Known for his vivid and evocative depictions of Texas landscapes and characters, Wittliff's poetry is a testament to the rich history and culture of the Lone Star State.
- Larry McMurtry: Celebrated for his novels and screenplays, McMurtry's poetry is characterized by its wry wit and insightful observations about human nature.
- Carolyn Osborn: A master of form and language, Osborn's poetry explores the complexities of human relationships and the search for meaning in a rapidly changing world.
- David Wevill: Born in England but raised in Texas, Wevill's poetry is a reflection of his dual heritage, blending traditional forms with a contemporary sensibility.
- Erika Meitner: Meitner's work is known for its lyrical beauty and its exploration of themes of identity, memory, and loss.

Analysis of the Poems

The poems in 'New And Selected Poems: TCU Texas Poets Laureate Series' are as diverse as the poets themselves. Some poems are deeply rooted in the Texas landscape, while others explore universal themes of love, loss, and the human condition. One of the most striking features of the collection is the poets' skillful use of language and imagery to create vivid and memorable experiences for the reader.

For example, in William Wittliff's poem "The Last Cowboy," he paints a nostalgic portrait of a fading way of life on the Texas frontier:

The last cowboy rides alone Across the empty plain, His horse's hooves a

In contrast, Carolyn Osborn's poem "The River" takes a more introspective turn, exploring the complexities of human relationships:

The river flows through time and space, Reflecting all that is and was.
