The poets in Postcards From The Interior American Poets Continuum 92 explore a wide range of themes in their work. Some of the most common themes include love, loss, nature, and the search for meaning. The poets use a variety of styles and techniques to express their ideas. Some of the poems are lyrical and meditative, while others are more experimental and challenging.

The Anthology

Postcards From The Interior American Poets Continuum 92 is divided into four sections. The first section, "The Interior Landscape," features poems that explore the inner lives of the poets. The second section, "The Social Landscape," features poems that address social and political issues. The third section, "The Natural Landscape," features poems that celebrate the beauty of the natural world. The fourth section, "The Spiritual Landscape," features poems that explore the search for meaning and purpose in life.

The anthology is beautifully produced, with high-quality paper and printing. The cover features a painting by the American artist Edward Hopper. The painting depicts a woman sitting alone in a hotel room, looking out the window. The image is both haunting and evocative, and it perfectly captures the mood of the anthology.

Postcard from the Interior

I am writing to you from the interior,

Where the light is dim and the air is still.

I am writing to you from the place where I have always lived,

But which I have only just begun to see.

I am writing to you from the place where I am learning to be alone,

And where I am learning to love myself.

I am writing to you from the place where I am finding my voice,

And where I am learning to speak my truth.

I am writing to you from the interior,

And I am sending you my love.
