Marcus Aurelius was born in Rome on April 21, 121 AD. His father was Annius Verus, a praetor, and his mother was Domitia Lucilla. Marcus Aurelius had a younger brother, Lucius Verus, who would later become his co-emperor.

Marcus Aurelius was a precocious child. He began studying philosophy at the age of 12 and soon became a follower of Stoicism. Stoicism is a philosophy that emphasizes the importance of living in accordance with nature and reason. Stoics believe that virtue is the only true good and that external events are indifferent.

Marcus Aurelius became emperor in 161 AD after the death of his adoptive father, Antoninus Pius. Marcus Aurelius was a just and compassionate ruler. He was also a skilled military commander. He led the Roman army to victory in several wars, including the Parthian War and the Marcomannic Wars.

Marcus Aurelius died in 180 AD at the age of 58. He was succeeded by his son, Commodus.

Marcus Aurelius is considered one of the greatest Roman emperors. He was a wise and virtuous ruler who led the Roman Empire to peace and prosperity. His writings continue to inspire people today.
